If you are new to art or extending your artistic skills there are many benefits in developing painting and drawing skills at the same time. You will find that improving your drawing ability will accelerate your progress in painting.

Drawing more accurately means you can move into the painting phase sooner, reducing distractions from trying to "fix" mistakes in the drawing, letting you focus more time on developing your painting.

This art class will introduce you to different approaches to the process of drawing and planning phase before you begin to paint. You will be taught how to develop your drawing into a painting and understand how the two skills come together to create a finished piece of art.

During this art course you will produce a series of drawings from:

- references images from the "masters",
- contemporary artists, as well as
- in studio observational drawing using still life composition.

- how to perceive and render light and dark values in preparation for painting

Concepts and artistic skills you will learn include;
